Born: 1991-09-25

Hometown: Galve, Sweden

Calle Jarnkrok, C
Shoots: R
Height: 6-0
Weight: 176

Calle Järnkrok

Written by	√ Travis	Watson -	Last U	pdated	Thursday	. 30	May	2013	07:22
------------	----------	----------	--------	--------	----------	------	-----	------	-------

Drafted: 2010 by Detroit, 51	st	overall
	.

Observations:

May 2013- Calle played his way onto Team Sweden for the 2013 IIHF Ice Hockey World Championship and came away with the gold medal. Even though Jarnkrok was limited to mainly fourth line duty he was able to gain some valuable experience against some of the best players in the world. He finished the tournament with one assist in 10 games while playing a shade over 10 minutes a game. Travis Watson

April 2013- Calle Jarnkrok took a big step last year helping entrench himself into the top echelon of Detroit prospects when he posted 4G-12A-16PTS and a plus-12 rating en route to a Swedish Elite League Championship. Jarnkrok then found out this year exactly how hard it is to defend your crown especially when you lose your top scorer (Jakub Silfverberg- Ottawa) and top goaltender (Niklas Svedberg- Boston). Jarnkrok, despite limited talent around him, was able to finish the season as the ninth highest scorer in the league with a respectable 13G-29A-42PTS-50GP helping Brynas secure the eighth seed before losing four straight to Skelleftea AIK in the first round of the playoffs ending Brynas chances of capturing back to back championships.

Since being ousted, Jarnkrok has jumped across the Atlantic to join Detroits' affiliate Grand Rapids Griffins where to date he has posted 3A in 8GP. Ken Holland and his staff will be monitoring their top prospect closely in seeing how he handles the more physical North American game. - Travis Watson

August 2012 – The Wings will bring Jarnkrok to training camp this fall for a close look, from there he could head to the AHL or more likely back to Sweden to play for Brynas again. Within the next two years, he will be pushing very hard for a quality job in Detroit. Jason Banks

April, 2012- Calle Jarnkrok is the kind of player the Red Wings covet and have a knack of finding. He is not that different to his countryman and current Red Wing, Henrik Zetterberg. Both have similar size and can play left wing as well as center. The mental game for Jarnkrok is very advanced in all zones. He reads plays well and knows how to position himself and react. He may not have elite NHL potential like Zetterberg but he will be a very solid NHL forward. He helps make plays happen that really rely on his talents. However what holds him back is doing it regularly though that could come with time, experience and eventually confidence. - Yas Guthe

Written by Travis Watson - Last Updated Thursday, 30 May 2013 07:22
Fantasy Outlook : B
Good all-round upside and certainty. Seems to lack elite potential. Very solid prospect.
Footage:
Jarnkrok with the nifty hands and finish

Calle Järnkrok